Press Info

The two artists met by chance in the vastness of the Internet one day in 2008. After digesting all of EvilMrSod's production with a feeling of intense jealousy, Dallas Kincaid suggested to write together what it ended up being "Subterranean Power Strain." The original idea did not seem too logical, because the styles of the two musicians, although with the same influences, were not called to marry easily. The classical composition of a songwriter, on the one hand, needing only little to jump-start, and the other's songs, based on tortuous loops and samples. What brought them together at first was, no doubt, their stage experience, each in its own way. EMS, without any equipment whatsoever; DK armed with samplers.

Therefore, in this CD that would be recorded in France and Germany, each of them participate in the compositions of the other. They still had find out the person responsible for organizing all the tracks exchanged over the Rhine River. The name of Matt Verta-Ray was first out of the hat and it seemed obvious that it was he who mixed the album. The co-founder and guitarist of Heavy Trash and Speedball Baby produces for major labels (4AD, EMI, Fat Possum, In the Red, Sympathy For The Record Industry, Atlantic ...) big names such as Jon Spencer, Jim Scavunous, André Williams, Kid Congo Powers, Robert Quine, Ronnie Spector ... a reference name in a reference studio: the NYHed Studio! The mixing started at the end of September, 2010.

In the middle of the mixing process the opportunity arose to have Ivan Julian (Richard Hell & The Voidoids, Matthew Sweet) mastering the album, which was a new joy, the icing on the cake.

Now, once finished, comes the part where the audience has to enjoy hearing it as much as they enjoyed recording it.
